Introductory Training on Partners ‘Intercultural Companion to Training for Transformation’

The training

Comhlámh in collaboration with Partners Training for Transformation is proud to present this two day training introducing a key intercultural facilitation resource, Partners ‘Intercultural Companion to Training for Transformation’.

Visit <http://www.comhlamh.org/development-education.html> for more information on the Intercultural Companion. Copies will be available for use and to purchase during the course at the reduced rate of €15.

The Purpose: This two day training offers opportunities to:

- ❖ Learn about, become familiar with, and explore the thinking and principles behind the Companion.
- ❖ Experience exercises and processes you might use with others.
- ❖ Identify and prepare for ways in which you might use this resource in your context.
- ❖ Explore and reflect on how you have been shaped by your own culture.

The Process: The two days will take the form of a highly participative, experiential, hands-on workshop with handouts and resource material for developing ideas and options people may wish to pursue.

For whom is the course intended?: This course will be of particular interest to anyone who works in formal or non-formal settings with groups involved in development education and overseas development, community development, community education and adult education. It will also be of interest to those whose lives or work situations involve a significant intercultural dimension.
